

A DAY WITH PAUL

Duration	1 hour
Guided	Yes
Prior booking required	No

The Plantation is the life of After the Rains where different species of crops are grown. They vary from Coffee, Pepper, Areca nut, Fruit trees, Honey, Dairy, Livestock's etc. We take a lot of pride and effort in not using chemical fertilizers and rely upon organic sources of farming. Traditional methods are used where sustainability is given prior importance. With 'A Day with Paul', one can have a hands on experience in our plantation and be a planter for a day.

Mr. Paul, the supervisor of the plantation, has been associated with the property since its very beginning and is the backbone of all agricultural activities undertaken. Born to plantation workers, he has been working in the soil since childhood and has never missed an opportunity to learn. Warm, spontaneous and always with a smile, Paul is an inseparable part of the plantation and heads all the organic activities.

Be part of our team in plucking Coffee and Pepper, know the difference between Robusta and Arabica, feed the cows, touch the goats and make yourself as close to nature as possible. In 'A Day with Paul', you are welcomed to be part of our team who takes care of the plantation. The activity begins with a small trek within the plantation itself and then Mr. Paul explains to you about various crops and their usage. Starting from Coffee and pepper he then proceeds to fruit trees, cocoa, livestock's, honey and vegetables grown and explains how each crop/vegetable is taken special care in the process of farm to table. The plantation also cultivates Wild spinach, Arbi and Yam which are commonly found in the forests and is a staple diet of the tribals who live nearby.

From a farmers perspective nothing should be and can be wasted in a farmland. In A Day with Paul, how earth nurtures us and our livelihood and what we can do as inmates to protect and sustain this planet is conveyed.
